Cocktail Experience: the Negroni Sbagliato

The Negroni Sbagliato was born in Milan between the end of the 60s and the beginning of the 70s, in the Basso bar, a historic neighborhood bar still in vogue today. It was invented by the bartender Mirko Stocchetto: it seems that during the preparation of a classic Negroni, Mirko confused the bottle of gin with that of Prosecco...

You can prepare your Negroni Sbagliato step by step with a professional bartender in live streaming.
A toast is always a great way to start!

Show Cooking Experience: Risotto alla Milanese

The origins of Risotto alla Milanese date back to the Middle Ages and are linked to a similar recipe of Arab cuisine and Jewish cuisine. In the Middle Ages, in Italy this dish was known as "rice with zafran". The Risotto alla Milanese was born in 1574 at the table of the Belgian glassmaker Valerio di Fiandra, who at the time resided in Milan because he was working on the stained glass windows of the Milan Cathedral. For the wedding of his daughter, his glass colleagues added to a white risotto with saffron butter: this spice was in fact used by glassmakers to obtain a particular yellow color of the glass. The new dish was immediately successful, both for its flavor and for its yellow hue, reminiscent of gold, synonymous with wealth.

During this Show Cooking, a professional chef will reveal to you the curiosities related to this first course of the Milanese tradition and the secrets of its preparation. You can follow the chef step by step and prepare your dish!

Show Cooking Experience: Charlotte alla Milanese

The Charlotte alla Milanese, in the oldest recipe books also referred to as “scarlotte”, “ciarlotta” or “carlotta”, is a typical dessert of Milanese cuisine. Although it shares the name with the charlotte, this cake shares the name only for the shape: although the origin of the name is unknown with certainty, it is thought that this term is due to the shape of the cake similar to the homonymous headdress. The cake consists of apples cut into wedges cooked in white wine, sugar and lemon peel, to which raisins and candied fruit are subsequently added: this suitably seasoned dough is placed in a lining of stale bread in the typical mold and all left to cook in oven and finally sprinkled with rum.

There are many variations of the recipes; the most common with pears instead of apples, or with sponge cake instead of bread. The Milanese charlotte can be consumed both hot and cold, and can be accompanied by a sweet wine such as a Moscato.

During this Show Cooking, a professional chef will reveal to you the curiosities related to this dessert of the Milanese tradition and the secrets of its preparation. You can follow the chef step by step and prepare your cake!
